‘Kentucky Health’ discusses how to evaluate medical information on the internet

FOR RELEASE: Nov. 10, 2021

The average person can find a wealth of medical information and research online—but is it all equally credible? On this episode of Kentucky Health, host Dr. Wayne Tuckson welcomes Dr. Susan Galandiuk, editor-in-chief of the journal Diseases of the Colon and Rectum, to discuss how reputable scientific research studies are conducted, evaluated and published; and offer suggestions for how savvy consumers can evaluate medical information on the internet.

Kentucky Health: Medical Information: Discerning the Wheat from the Chaff episode airs Sunday, Nov. 14, at 12:30 pm/11:30 am on KET and Monday, Nov. 15, at 2/1 pm on KET2.

Kentucky Health is a weekly KET program that seeks to improve the people’s health through education and increased awareness. Kentucky Health is hosted by Dr. Wayne Tuckson, a colorectal surgeon in Louisville, and produced by Laura Krueger.

KET is Kentucky’s largest classroom, where learning comes to life for more than one million people each week via television, online and mobile. Learn more about Kentucky’s preeminent public media organization at KET.org, on Twitter @KET and at facebook.com/KET.
